“ I blame my Dad for a lot of different things.

It's his fault I have to do home maintenance; remodeling; plumbing; and electrical myself; because he taught me how to do those things and I hate to pay someone else to do what I know I can do myself. Of course some of that might have something to do with being Dutch.

It's his fault that things take longer to do because he taught me from a very young age that if you're going to do something; DO IT RIGHT.

I blame Mom and Dad for my creativity. I worked with an engineer for many years and he always told me if he wanted an off the wall; out of the box idea he would come see me. That was all their fault.

I blame Dad for my sense of humor which he kept right to the end of his life on this earth but I'm sure he has continued it in Heaven.

This just scratches the surface of everything that I can blame on Mom and Dad. I'm sure my siblings can add a lot to this list that we can blame on Mom and Dad.

And to my sibling's

Now we have to carry on everything that we can blame on Mom and Dad to keep their legacy going!
