“ I had the privilege of worshiping with Roger at Plymouth Wesleyan and working with him at Knox Middle School. You could always see his love for people at church and for the students and staff at the school. One memory that stands out to me from school is from the end of the day before Christmas break one year. I had a rickety table in my classroom. A student leaned on it, and down it went. Roger walked by while I was looking it over. He could have encouraged me to turn in a maintenance request and headed home, but instead he went back to the office, dug out a screwdriver, and helped me himself to fix it. That was Roger--down to earth and willing to jump in and help out even when it wasn't his job. I'm sorry for your loss, Joan, but celebrating with you a life lived well and for the Lord. Praying for you!

“ One day, I happened to be substitute teacher at Lakeview Christian School for a kindergarten class which would become the Class of '95. One little boy in that class was at school that day even though his grandfather had just died. it was the very beginning of the school day. Roger Syswerda opened the door to the classroom and looked around until he saw the boy. Roger said nothing. He walked over to the child, bent down and simply held the boy in a long hug.
