“Bill had the two qualities I admire most in any person..... he was honest and hard working. He and I enjoyed many great times together at the park, and I considered him a true friend. I will sorely miss him.”

“Bill Brown" one unusual man that cannot be compared to anyone else ever. He gave so much to many, in so many ways. If you knew him, you were blessed. It is difficult to express how much he will be missed after being with him for so many years. He took such good care of me all of the time, even if I thought I was caring for him. We that are left to praise and celebrate his life will be shouting his name at his family's plot in Ramsey, Illinois on March 5, 2015. That is where he wanted his ashes to go, so that is where his final resting place will be, although he made his mark in Michigan for 22 years. Thank you Bill for being such a huge part of my life. Fly free with the Eagles and I will join you as soon as I can "Boogy".”
